Eleanor Horsley started the Horsley Couture label in 2015, following the purchase of a small factory in Kendal that produces tweed clothing, both for independent shops and for the in-house Lakeland Skirts brand. Lakeland Skirts has been making made to measure tweed skirts and trousers in Kendal since 1956.

Horsley Couture offers a beautiful range of jackets, coats and accessories made almost exclusively using Linton Tweeds. Linton Tweeds also supplies to one of the most famous fashion houses in the world, Chanel.

These incredible tweeds offer sumptuous textures and colours that really stand out as the height of luxury. The designs are inspired by times gone by, capturing the elegance and style of the 1930s, 40s and 50s in particular.

"I love working personally with clients, offering a friendly and exclusive service to everyone" says Eleanor.

Eleanor's background is in fashion design and pattern cutting, working for several years as a professional pattern cutter in London, latterly as the in-house pattern cutter for Burberry. She has also worked as a fashion lecturer in Bristol, Vietnam and Singapore, and run a successful bespoke bridal business in the Lake District.

Horsley Couture delivers a uniquely personal experience for those in search of the perfect outfit for a wedding, be it as bride or mother of the bride/groom, for the races, or quite frankly for simply swanning about feeling special in! Clients can choose from bespoke jackets that she will personally design and cut, or from her exquisite collection of jackets and coats.
